Abstract

In this article, the tasks of educational institutions and the family environment for the good organization of mother tongue reading literacy in primary grades and their role in improving students' knowledge are discussed.

Keywords: speech, written speech, oral speech, education, family, motive, innovation.

INTRODUCTION

Currently, our honorable president Sh. Mirziyoyev is paying a lot of attention to the field of education. Today, the growth of science and technology requires innovations in education. Students in schools in our country are encouraged to create innovative ideas and apply them to others. In order to further improve the quality of education, we definitely need written speech as well as oral speech. The more developed our children's oral speech, the more developed and fluent their written literacy should be.

One of today's important tasks is to analyze and implement the role of the family environment in the educational process to increase the effectiveness of education. It is necessary to set these tasks as a goal and certainly take a step forward towards this goal. In order to bring great achievements to our education system, all representatives of the education sector should work together. In order to further improve the quality of education, we definitely need written speech as well as oral speech. The more developed our children's oral speech, the more developed and fluent their written literacy should be.

the child is accompanied by the development of skills, knowledge, personal characteristics and character traits. When raising a child, parents must always be against age characteristics. In this case, it is necessary to teach the child from birth, that is, from infancy. When the child is fourteen days old, he hears his mother's voice and begins to understand it depending on his age. In this case, the mother should say "Alla" to her child and dress up by singing various poems and songs.

Children aged three to seven years want adults to praise them for what they have done. At this age, children develop speech. In this case, parents must be an example to their children. That is, a mother teaches her child not to shout, to be self-possessed, not to be capricious, but if she shouts, the child will copy it from the mother. At this age, children want to be like their parents. At this age, parents should set an example for their children.

Children should be taught many things through games. That is, with the help of various games, it is possible to increase the child's vocabulary and teach him to say words correctly.

If an educated mother educates her child in the family and, of course, if work is carried out in cooperation with educational institutions, our country will develop mature professionals.

RESEARCH METHODS AND METHODOLOGY

teachers have a great responsibility. The student, who has just stepped on the threshold of the school, introduces the young people to school life and gives them the skills to learn. During this time, the child will definitely need the mother's attention to the child. Even in the family circle, it is necessary to talk about the necessary information to the child and direct the child's interest to various professions. Of course, you should ask your child what he learned during the day and what he liked. It is necessary to show the future of the child by asking what his child is interested in and giving him additional information. Child education definitely depends on parents. Written speech is the most important for us. Oral speech and written speech are closely related. Because where there is oral speech, there is definitely written speech. Students should also read what is written in the books correctly, as well as write what is said correctly. If we say words to our child correctly and fluently, he will also say words correctly and fluently. It can be seen from this that even after caressing the child, he should not say the words in vain. Later, he does not explain the words to the child by renaming them. We can know that the family environment plays a big role in the development of a child's speech.

Our Honorable President Sh. Mirziyoyev, "First of all, we must show our children a practical example of being loyal to the country, the people, loving science, profession, and fulfilling our duty to parents and society. These thoughts reach the hearts of all professions and encourage them to be devoted to their professions. All the major stages of your child's development have one thing in common: at every stage, your son or daughter needs their parents. Parents should understand that the child's behavior is related to the development of the psyche, hormonal changes. There are several crisis periods when a child changes. Don't think he's being mean or trying to hurt you. Changes are taking place without even noticing it. The mental activity of the baby is becoming more complex, and the world around is changing. Understanding is important on your part. Yes, all his antics, aggression and bad behavior cannot be encouraged or ignored. It is harmful to the child. But you should not be aggressive with him, beat, shout. Try to understand what is happening to your baby right now. Does he want to be more independent? Learning to hold a spoon or drink from a cup by yourself? There is nothing wrong with that. Help him, show him, teach him. This will allow you to establish a normal, healthy relationship with your child in the future. This will make our children speak fluently and think clearly.

RESEARCH RESULTS

In the application of pedagogical technologies in education, the lesson should be fully covered. It is necessary to increase students' interest in the mother tongue through an innovative approach with pedagogical skills in the organization of native language reading literacy classes in primary grades. It is necessary to connect the science of mother tongue to life. Then let the students learn to honor our mother tongue and learn it perfectly, and let the young generation also decide to teach the secrets of our mother tongue.

Special attention should be paid to the intellectual activity of primary school students. Depending on their youth, interest, and mental activity, they should teach subjects that are easy and interesting. Topics explained to students related to the environment and life will make them think quickly and broaden their worldview.

Pupils should be able to hear and understand the opinions of others and be able to convey their opinions to others.

DISCUSSION

Our Honorable President Sh. Mirziyoyev, "First of all, we must show our children a practical example of being loyal to the country, the people, loving science, profession, and fulfilling our duty to parents and society. These thoughts reach the hearts of all professions and encourage them to be devoted to their professions.

CONCLUSION

In conclusion, it should be said that the environment in the family, the attention of parents to their children, the ability of educational institutions to freely express the opinion of students according to the national program for students' knowledge and learning of subjects. attention should be paid.
